

Notice of Closure – Stylehurst Farm

Following the recent government enforcement of closure for certain hospitality providers, I have reconsidered my own position and have sadly reached the decision in order to help prevent the rapid spread of Coronavirus, Stylehurst Farm will be closed to guests until further notice. This will take effect from March 25th.

I am following the advice coming from government closely but must consider the health of my staff, local residents and of course the massive extra burden on our local NHS should guests become ill whilst staying. The extra demand on our local food shops that are struggling daily to maintain levels of food stocks for our local community also aids my decision.

Many local attractions have also closed their doors until further notice and a number of the fantastic places that I am normally able to advise my guests to visit are understandably not welcoming tourists just at the present time.

If you already have accommodation booked with me in the next few months, I suggest you make contact with me in order that we may discuss a path forwards that is acceptable to both you and I.

Once the government advice is such and I am confident that the virus threat is no longer with us, I will be opening for bookings again. Stylehurst Farm is a fantastic place to visit with plenty of fresh countryside air and lots of things to see and do both here in Surrey and rural tourism in general and we will need your support when we are able to resume our normal daily lives.

I hope you all stay safe and thank you for your patience and understanding at this unprecedented time.
